At is the very thing the sell in, if he had four or a lone to preach on funeral octing the week, in addition to his ordinate and incertain localities in our country it is the uniform custom to have a funeral sermon preached whenever a death occurs whether the person be a distinguished citizen or a little child. Now take a pastor of one of our large congregations, where he is frequently called upon to officiate at funerals four, or flee, or six times in a week, and we can realize that the labor would be more than he could continue to endure. Therefore, from the communities where this custom prevails, comes chiefly the protest against the old usage, and the advocacy of a prepared burial service which can be used on all occasions. But it is out of the question to scene a uniform burial service is our country where we have people of all nationalities, and different denominations of Christians. Let the service be as simple as possible—the reading of a few appropriate selections from the World of God—the singing of a hymn or pasin, if desired, a short address to the living, "ing forth the lessons of the Divine proval and the whole concluded with the whole concluded with a send a car "in the world of God—the singing of a hymn or pasin, if desired, a short address to the living, "ing forth the lessons of the Divine proval and the whole concluded with a send a car "in the send and a car "in the control of the control o they had just come sake from the actions and the Masestro played so beautifully, and that never before had the violin's voice sounded so mournful and pathetic.

Well, you see, they did not know the reason, but we do, for both were thinking of the little dying girl, and how could their thoughts be anything but sorrowful, or the outward expression of those thoughts be anything but sorrowful, or the outward expression of those thoughts be anything but sorrowful, or the outward expression of those thoughts be anything but mournful?

The father was weeping by his child's bediside. But she said: "Do not weep, sing to me—sing me to sleep, for I am so weary, dear father, and the evening has been so long without thee."

Then he rose and he played to her, and she closed her eyes and listened happily to Carissima's voice. It sang a song without words—the music alone told the tale—of a pure young life, too pure for earth, and therefore to be taken away to that fair land where only the good and pure and true dwell. Yet it was hard to leave the earth, harder still to leave the dear once behind, and to know that they would be desolate; and here the violin's voice sobbed and trembled as if from sorrow, and the melody became sadder and softer, as if describing the very parting which was soon to take place; then the lingering notes died away and the Maestro's hand was still.

"Is that al!?" murmured the child; "oh, play again!"

Once more he raised his bow on high, and the ali resounded with a usual of the chart of the professorship in the new medical college professorship in the new medical college to take the well was a sam girls.
